A MAN OF NERVE.

BY WALLACE P. REED.

For The Constitution.

It was in the old days before the war, when duels were as common as tea parties in the south.

An English tourist was rarely seen in the back counties of Arkansas thirty years ago, and when young Graham Vane made his appearance in Southboro, wearing garments of a foreign cut, people stared at him curiously and rudely.

"He's a blank yankee," said one of the villagers who had been critically surveying the stranger.

"Mebbe so," replied the landlord of the Eagle hotel, "but he registered from London, and when I asked him what he hailed from he told me that he was an Englishman."

"Englishman or Yankee, it's all one to me," growled old Colonel Hays, "I'll bet that he's an abolitionist, all the same."

"He won't talk," remarked the landlord; "I tried to set up the drinks and draw him out, but he wouldn't say a word."

Colonel Hays shook his head ominously. "An abolitionist, or I'm a liar!" was his emphatic comment.

Before Mr. Vane had time to move about and make acquaintances the public verdict was against him. There was nothing in his appearance to impress strangers unfavorably. He was a man of massive frame, with a large head, a frank, open face, and pleasant blue eyes. Altogether, he was a handsome young fellow, and it soon became evident that he was surprised at his surly reception.

"Vane till Bill Singleton meets him," people said when they saw Mr. Vane taking his solitary walks; "just wait till Bill gets hold of him."

Luckily for his peace of mind, the Englishman heard none of these remarks. He pursued the even tenor of his way, and spent most of his time in his room. He felt very little interest in Southboro. In fact, he was only waiting for a remittance from his New Orleans bankers, when it was his intention to resume his leisurely tour through the country.

One morning Vane went to the postoffice for his mail. Several loungers were standing around the door, and their expectant air showed that they were waiting for something.

"That's Vane," whispered a man to a tall, yellow-faced gentleman whose curled locks and elegant costume made him the most conspicuous figure in the crowd.

Singleton smiled and darted a vicious look at the unsuspecting stranger. He foresaw an easy victory. This hero of a dozen duels was tired of shooting his brother planters and an occasional Frenchman in New Orleans. He wanted to smell the blood of an Englishman.

Vane called for his mail, and a letter was handed to him. He turned away and was reading the post mark on the envelope when Singleton ran against him, causing him to drop the letter. He picked it up, and was on his way out of the office, too much occupied with his thoughts to notice the sneers of the crowd, when Singleton deliberately stepped on his foot.

out a card, threw it down at his enemy's feet and walked off to his hotel.

In those times—away back in the fiery fifties—it did not take long to get up a duel in Arkansas. Singleton was an expert in such affairs, and of course it was an easy matter for him to secure a second. In less than an hour after the encounter at the postoffice his friend waited upon Mr. Vane at the hotel.

"How did the fool look?" asked Singleton when his second returned. "Did his teeth chatter?"

But his messenger had no such good news. On the contrary, he was very serious. He told his principal that Vane had found a friend in Colonel Osborne, and that the colonel was at that very moment engaged in writing an acceptance of the challenge.

"I don't understand it," said Colonel Hays. "Why should Osborne mix himself up with the affairs of this foreigner, this abolitionist?"

"Well," replied Singleton's friend, "the truth is, we have made a mistake about Vane. He is an Englishman of standing, traveling for pleasure, and Osborne this morning received a letter from his bankers in New Orleans requesting him to show Vane every possible attention. Osborne is going to act for him and see that he has his fair play."

Singleton and his friends felt somewhat depressed at the turn the affair had taken, and when the answer to the challenge came, and it was found that pistols were to be the weapons, and the distance was to be fifteen paces, some surprise was felt.

"I'll kill him," said Singleton with a smile. "He is a sluggish, stupid fellow, and before he pulls trigger he will be a dead man."

"I believe you will come out all right, old fellow," said his second, "but Osborne tells me that this man has been an officer in the British army, and is a man of wonderful nerve."

"Is he a good shot?" Singleton asked impatiently.

"Well, Osborne said nothing about that," was the answer, "but he had a good deal to say about Vane's cool courage, his self-possession and his nerve."

"It's all right," snapped Singleton; "I'll kill him."

In accordance with the barbarous fashion of the times, nearly the whole male population of Southboro turned out that afternoon to witness the duel.

The crowd divided, leaving a wide lane in the middle, in which the combatants were to take their stand. Some of the spectators climbed into the trees, and others got behind fences and such breastworks as were likely to protect them from scattering shots.

Singleton was the center of a party of admiring friends, when Vane appeared, accompanied by Osborne and half a dozen gentlemen. The Englishman wore the serene look habitual with him, and preserved his usual silence, speaking only when Osborne made some remark to him.

Singleton promenaded through the crowd assuring his friends that the foreigner was a coward, and that he would kill him at the first fire. His words were intended to reach Vane's ears, and many turned their heads to see what effect they had upon the stranger.

Vane stooped and plucked a little flower. "We have this in England," he said to Osborne, "and I am glad to find it here. It does not grow wild with us. We cultivate it in our flower gardens, and it grows to a large size."

The listeners looked at each other in astonishment. Here was a man on the eve of a duel with the best shot in the southwest growing enthusiastic over a little wild flower! They drew nearer in order to listen, and even Singleton paused and strained his ears.

"I am glad," said Vane to his second, "that this business is to be settled at such an early hour. I have ordered a horse at the hotel to be ready for me at six o'clock. There will be time for me to intercept the stage. I cannot afford to remain here another day."

Singleton's face fell, and his eyes flashed with anger as he saw some of his friends looking thoughtfully at him.

"You will wing him, I suppose?" said Osborne in a loud tone.

"Do not ask me to speak of it," replied Vane. "It is an unpleasant affair, but I feel that public sentiment here will justify me in what I am about to do."

He spoke in a deliberate, measured way, and Singleton heard every word.

For the first time in his life the Arkansas felt uneasy. He stared at his adversary, and caught him in the act of carefully pressing his little finger in his nose.

When the two took their places, there was a moment's delay. The Englishman saw a little dust on his polished boots, and bent down to brush it off with a tuft of grass.

Singleton gasped for breath when he saw this, and when Vane adjusted his eye glasses, which he had not worn before, the duelist could not hide his nervousness. The stare of those eyes was paralyzing!

When the word was given, two shots rang out simultaneously, and Singleton fell heavily to the ground. Vane walked calmly forward.

"He is shot above the heart," he said to the surgeon; "I was careful about that. It is an ugly wound, but it is not fatal."

A buzz of astonishment ran through the crowd, and then the people began to press forward to take Vane's hand and congratulate him. Their former favorite was forgotten for the time.

In five minutes Singleton's friends had deserted him, and all were rallying around the stranger.

"It was not his skill," said Osborne to Colonel Hays; "it was his nerve, just that and nothing else. His coolness hacked Singleton, and then he had it all his own way. Nerve wins nine times out of ten."

Vane would have received an ovation if he had remained, but he left the grounds with his party, and lost no time in taking his departure from the town.

Singleton recovered in several weeks. He changed his whole course of life as soon as he left his bed. He never fought another duel, and during the remainder of his life he was one of Southboro's most peaceable citizens.

Terrible are the Ravages of the system inflicted by diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They wreck the constitution more speedily in some cases than consumption and other maladies of a fatal pulmonary type. As you value your life, arrest a tendency to debility, and consequent inactivity of the renal organs, should you experience any such. Infuse vigor and activity into the vitally important secretory action of the kidneys with that salutary diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The proper degree of stimulation is imparted by it to the bladder also, when that organ is sluggish. With this timely check, Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, and other kindred disorders, may be prevented. Liver complaint, constipation, nervous ailments and rheumatism, are likewise comparable with this sovereign household remedy. Against the effects of exposure to damp or otherwise inclement weather, it is a benign safeguard, and revives strength after undue fatigue.

SOCIETY SALAD.

Events of the Week on the Social Side of Life.

A NUMBER OF PLEASANT HAPPENINGS.

At the Clubs, in the Parlors and on the Lawns—Excursions and Dinings—Weddings and Rumors of Coming Events.

The past week has been a quiet one in society circles. Everybody has been preparing to receive the friends who will be their guests during the exposition, and all are getting ready for the Cleveland festival. There are very few houses in Atlanta which will not be full of visitors during the next two weeks, and this means, of course, a round of parties.

Atlanta will be at her best in the reception to the president and his lovely wife. The distinguished couple, with doubtless, have seen in St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee and other western and northern cities larger crowds, more imposing buildings and more "sights" than they will see here, but no city can possibly compare with Atlanta in the heartiness of the reception which it will extend its guests. From the time Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland step from their special train on Monday morning, they will receive continued and continuous evidences of one fact, that Atlanta and Georgia welcome to them a genuine, old-fashioned Georgia "welcome." It will be a welcome from the heart, and to which every man, woman and child, will join.

The social features in the programme of entertainment will be particularly elegant. It is so to Atlanta, in this respect, will excite anything attempted in any other city. The Capitol City club reception, and the various private receptions will be models of their kind.

On Friday last there was celebrated in New York city a wedding in which a great many Atlantians deeply interested. It was that of Mr. Charles Berman, the genial "main host" at the Kimball, and Miss Anna Bohne, late of Germany. Miss Bohne arrived in New York by the steamer Worme on the 4th instant. She is the daughter of Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the niece of Madam Schmitz, at this city. The wedding ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father. The wedding party consisted of Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father. The wedding party consisted of Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father.

Wednesday evening, in Philadelphia, Mr. E. Lamar Richards, of Atlanta, was married to Miss Anna B. Zeigler, of Philadelphia. The wedding was a notable one in Philadelphia, the family of the bride occupying a well-known position in the society of that city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. T. Richards, of Philadelphia. The bride was escorted by her father, Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father.

After the ceremony, the wedding party were given a reception at the home of the bride. The supper was provided by Philadelphia's best caterers, and the most of appetizing elegance. The presents were numerous and handsome, and the display was a revelation of beauty and costliness. Mrs. Richards is the daughter of Mr. H. Zeigler, the celebrated manufacturer of Philadelphia, and her marriage has been one of the prominent social lights of the "city of brotherly love." The newly-wedded pair will make an extensive tour before reaching Atlanta. They are due here on Wednesday, the 12th instant, and a cordial and generous welcome will be extended the popular young groom and his lovely bride.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, 801 Third street, this city, October 4th, Rev. Dr. Jacobson officiating, Mr. Charles H. Simon and Miss Rosa Wiesberg, and Mr. E. H. Hirsch and Miss Sallie Wiesberg. A large gathering of relatives and friends were present, and the ceremony was a most successful one. The bride was escorted by her father, Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father.

Two weeks ago cards were issued announcing the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hirsch, of this city, which occurred October 1st, and on that evening their beautiful, cozy home never looked brighter, and was the scene of rare enjoyment and pleasure. The guests, to the number of sixty, were cordially welcomed by the hostess, who is proverbial for her hospitality and social qualities. She was ably assisted by her genial, whole-souled husband, and the gifted, talented son, Dr. Harry Hirsch, who, by his easy grace of manner and speech, added greatly to the comfort and pleasure of the occasion. Every look and word of the hostess was greeted with smiles and hearty laughter by the guests, and the evening was a most successful one. The bride was escorted by her father, Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father.

A poem, written for the occasion, was read by Mr. D. M. Brownell, of Atlanta. The poem, which was a beautiful and touching tribute to the couple, was well received by the guests. The bride was escorted by her father, Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hirsch were guests of Mr. Emma Moore, at her home in Athens. The party was a most successful one, and the bride was escorted by her father, Mr. Louis Bohne, of Osnabruck, Germany, and the bride was escorted by her father.

has quite a musical family, himself, his wife, daughter and three sons being proficient on almost every instrument known. THE DRAMATIC WORLD.

The Seven Sutherland Girls—A Reminiscence.

THE ATTRACTIONS FOR THIS WEEK.

Baby Bindley, Barry and Fay and Mrs. D. P. Bowers—What is Going On in the Theatrical World.

"What can I say of Naomi?" Everybody remembers Naomi and her six sisters, long-haired sisters, their visit to Atlanta and particularly the malicious voice of the older, as she retold the charms of each. The man who first brought them out was in the city last week. That was Burk, the head of the ten cent show, that held forth on Wheat street.

"You remember them?" he asked. "Did I ever tell you how I found them? I was up in Kentucky, keeping my eyes peeled for whatever turn up, when I ran across a girl whose hair dragged on the floor. It struck me that she would do for an attraction, and I told her I'd like to have her go with my show."

But I have six sisters, all with hair as long as mine, he said. "I almost faint. Seven of them! I tell you it didn't take me long to sign a contract with them, and the four of the seven Sutherland sisters began."

"What's become of them?" "Naomi," you will remember, was the little one. She was right pretty. Well, a little peasant butler succeeded in winning her love and put him into the right chair. He was a sharp one, and soon sent the old man back home and began reaping the profits himself. The show business, though, wasn't profitable enough, so he patented a hair oil and called it after the Sutherland sisters, putting their pictures on the bottle. He could hardly fill the orders which poured in on him and now has an elegant suite of offices on Fifth avenue, and is making money hand over fist."

At the conclusion of their season at the Bijou, Salsbury's Truants, with Salsbury left out—will go around the world, making a tour of all the English speaking ports. John Webster and Nelly McHenry are the principal figures in the company.

Mr. Polk has made his hit in the Jerseyman, the play which with the name of the late Barney McCarty was so successfully played.

Colonel John McCarty can congratulate himself upon having secured a three years' contract with DeWolf Hopper, the great comedian.

The night Alceide died in Paris, her play, "Mam'zelle," was produced with great success in Philadelphia by Jennie Kimball.

THE THEATRE NEXT WEEK. During the first week of the exposition the opera house will be open every night and at three matinees, and three good attractions will be offered to our visitors.

Miss Florence Bindley, as a special Monday matinee, will play the opera of London for a whole season. "Excitement," and will repeat it at a special Tuesday matinee. Tuesday night she will appear in "The Heroine in Rags," one of the best productions of the famous Barry and Fay.

Miss Florence J. Bindley appeared at the Grand opera house in a piece, "The Heroine in Rags," before a large and new company, entitled "Excitement." The play and company made a hit, if the peals of laughter and applause which greeted the evening are any criterion. "Excitement" is a comedy of the "Confusion" order, abounding in many laughable situations. The play is a comedy, and the evening was a success.

Leaving Many Friends.

After a season of most remarkable features, Yellowstone Kit, the prince of medicine sellers, and his faithful distributor of money and patronage, departed from Jacksonville this week, leaving behind many staunch friends and many people who were greatly benefited by his treatment and cures. He certainly reaped a beautiful harvest, but he certainly disbursed many hundreds of dollars in our midst. It seems a very foolish and foolish act on the part of a few merchants who raised an outcry against this man's appearance and sales in our city.

The Trade Journal representative knows it to be a fact that in the purchase of trunks, clothing, jewelry, printing, advertising, hotel bills, salaries that were repaid in the main by his people among our merchants, and in rental for his stand, license and the many little things that go to make up a large aggregate, Kit disburse over $4,000 in four weeks. It was not like a circus that boards its own people, steps one day and carries away a great deal of money. The beauty of it was, that Kit paid promptly every bill presented. Such visitors deserve courteous remembrances. Hundreds of letters of thanks for cures, and not an ill-feeling on the part of patients treated, speak volumes for the powers of both Kit and his remedies. He is also a gentleman by birth, a staunch friend and a man of abilities that are natural. He is quoted by mercantile agencies as worth five million of dollars, and our local business men are kindly of him and his manager Mr. John Waller. Kit will bring a large tract of rich land of one of our leading real estate houses, two acres being, now looked at, and the industry to found a city to be called Kit's town, as well as build sanitariums and a hotel there. Good luck to Kit.—Jacksonville Journal.

Messrs. C. N. Porter & Co., 68 Peachtree, have just opened their store to the public. It is one that is destined to accomplish much, that the people of Atlanta will soon be able to appreciate. Costly Partridges. Pell City, Ala., was thrown into quite a state of excitement a few days since by several affidavits from what appeared to be a piece of heavy artillery. An investigation by an officer of the law disclosed the fact that a festive sportsman from Savannah, well known to the "boys," had "silly" popped over in the suburbs of the city a triplet of quail, whose immature appearance indicated that they were "too young to leave their mother."

This gives the Atlanta sportsmen a good reason for their excitement. The birds were donated en route to a recently married popular railroad magnate who would doubtless appreciate them when he learns that by accurate calculation they cost the general public four dollars and thirty-three cents in retail value. BOSTON CORBETT INSANE.

The Slayer of John Wilkes Booth a Mental Wreck.

TUPEKA, Kan., October 4.—Boston Corbett, the man who shot John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, was last evening declared hopelessly insane and a guardian was appointed by the probate judge to take charge of his property. Corbett was taken to the state insane asylum, and will probably continue an inmate of the institution as long as he lives, as physicians say that it is impossible for him to be cured.

The story of a bloody deed which so effectually blighted his life, and which has followed him into a straight-jacket, will always be an interesting one, as being part of a great national tragedy. Boston Corbett was an insignificant man at his best, but his name will always be linked with those of Lincoln and Booth, and how it came so will well bear repetition.

It will be remembered that it was on April 14, 1865, that Booth assassinated the president. He mounted a horse and rode over into Maryland. Cavalrymen, after scouting the country for eleven days, traced Booth to a barn on Garrett's farm near Port Royal. The soldiers surrounded the barn and demanded that Booth surrender, but he refused. The barn was fired. After the fire had started, Boston Corbett stepped up to the barn and, through a crozier shot Booth dead. He was then fired without orders. He was something of a fanatic, and for a breach of discipline had been court-martialed and sentenced to be shot. The order, however, was not executed, but he had been drummed out of the regiment. While living in Boston, Mass., he joined the Methodist church. Never having been baptized, he was at a loss to know what name to adopt, but after making it the subject of prayer he took the name of Boston, in honor of the place of his conversion. He was always understood to be a fanatic.

Soon after he killed Booth, Corbett received an anonymous letter purporting to be written by a confederate officer threatening Corbett's life. He really believed that the letter was carried out, and the matter weighed so heavily upon his mind that he became partially crazed. He believed that southern sympathizers were following him, and he believed that the members of that society were endeavoring to avenge his brother's death. He has resided on a farm in Cloud county for several years past, living in a log hut, and with scant allowance of food and clothing.

About one year ago he was a delegate to the republican county convention. While the convention was in progress, Corbett was seized with one of his spells, and he advanced to the platform, he pointed a pistol at the chairman, demanded silence, and proceeded to offer prayer. When he had concluded his prayer, he offered the convention a paper, which was appointed doctress of the Kansas house of representatives last winter. His conduct in the early part of the session was such that the members of that body were obliged to leave the house. He has since then been a recluse, and has since lost his mind altogether.

THE QUEEN'S EASTERN DOMINIONS Desires of Seeing Her Empire—Wales Discovers a New American Beauty.

LOS ANGELES, October 8.—The paper has given currency to an extraordinary rumor to the effect that the queen intends next year to visit India. The queen, according to very good authority, frequently has expressed the most earnest desire to see her great oriental empire, and the journey last winter of the favorite lady-in-waiting, the dowager duchess of Devon, to India has been the subject of much conjecture. It is reported that the prince of Wales has discovered a new American beauty this year at Honolulu, whom he proposes introducing to London society during the coming season. The young lady is not only a beauty with great physical attractions, but she is a money bags, too, moreover, with a contralto voice which his royal highness asserts is equal to the voice of Treble when in prime.

Imposed the Heaviest Penalty.

SAVANNAH, Ga., October 8.—[Special.]—Two well known and well-connected young men, Leander Butler and G. J. Withington, were before the grand jury this morning for assaulting John Cavanaugh, a white horseman. They threw him out of the saddle, and he fell. Cavanaugh was picked up insensible with a bad cut on the back of his head. He was not able to appear in court this morning. The grand jury imposed the heaviest penalty.

One Million Dollars Invested.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., October 8.—[Special.]—The charter of the Chattanooga Coal and Iron company was filed for record in this city today. The charter members are composed of Chattanooga, Philadelphia, Boston and New York capitalists, and the capital of the company is $1,000,000. 1,000,000 of coal and mineral lands have been purchased in Morgan, Scott, Fentress, Cumberland and Hamilton counties in the State of Tennessee. The company will build several blast furnaces, rolling mills and foundries. The organization of the company was completed five years ago, and a charter was not applied for until today. The land were all bought on the spot.

The Birmingham Newspaper War.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., October 7.—[Special.]—Chancellor Cobb today rendered a decision in the Age-Herald injunction suit. The decree was in favor of the Age-Herald, and a permanent injunction was granted against the Birmingham Post-Herald. The injunction was sustained as against the Birmingham Post-Herald, but the injunction was not sustained as against the Birmingham Post-Herald. The injunction was sustained as against the Birmingham Post-Herald, but the injunction was not sustained as against the Birmingham Post-Herald.

Work of Demons.

CHICAGO, October 8.—A time special from Sioux City, Iowa, says a palladium was made last night to wreck a Yankton passenger train on the Milwaukee and St. Paul road in a curve a mile this side of Ellipton, by fastening a bomb on the rear of the train. The bomb exploded, and the train was wrecked. The train was wrecked, and the train was wrecked.

Mexican Matters.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, October 8.—Forty senators were in their seats today at third reading of resolutions to incorporate in the constitution an amendment making the president eligible for a second term. After a brief discussion, the resolution was passed unanimously. It now goes to the house of deputies, which will undoubtedly pass it, when it will be officially proclaimed.

CRISP'S CONFERENCE WITH BISMARK

Conferences as to the Terms of the Alliance—The German Language Prohibited in Russian Schools—Other News.

[Copyright 1887, by New York Associated Press.]
BERLIN, October 8.—Since Signor Crisp's reported to King Humbert the results of the former's conference with Bismarck, the king has exchanged personal salutations with Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph, expressing his satisfaction at the conclusion of the peace alliance.

The press continues to teem with surmises as to the terms of the alliance, but nothing authentic has transpired which contradicts the earliest announcement in these dispatches regarding the conference. Among the recent semi-official statements worth noting that of the Pesther Lloyd takes the first place as a striking and suggestive declaration emanating from or inspired by the Austro-Hungarian foreign office. The paper says:

"The conference between Count Kalnoky and Prince Bismarck and Signor Crisp's travel over the whole of Europe, and the fact that the king has exchanged personal salutations with Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph, expressing his satisfaction at the conclusion of the peace alliance."

SUMMARY OF COTTON REPORTS.

Drought Foretold to Maturity—Picking Will Close Early.

NEW ORLEANS, La., October 8.—The Cotton World's report of the crop for the month of September says:

"A prominent feature of last month has been the almost unbroken continuation of the dry, warm weather, which has caused a rapid gathering of the staple, and at the same time destroying, except in a few sections, any prospect for the top crop. As a result of such conditions the quality of product grades high, though in localities there is some complaint of the recent season's value, damaging cotton, and in others of deteriorations by worms. Many of our correspondents allude to the unusual lightness of the staple and the difficulty of making the usual weight of bales. The two Carolinas and Alabama have held up well, while in Mississippi there is a preponderance of the reports indicate an improved yield over last year. Other states show a greater deterioration from last month, the falling off being more marked in Tennessee and Arkansas, and picking will be virtually over through a larger part of the belt before the close of October, and even in those sections extending beyond that time, the picking season will end much earlier than usual. Following is the condition by states: Virginia, 85; North Carolina, 85; South Carolina, 85; Georgia, 85; Florida, 85; Alabama, 85; Tennessee, 85; Arkansas, 77; Mississippi, 85; Louisiana, 85; Texas, 75; average for the belt, 83; average last year, 84.4.

Hog Cholera in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Ill., October 8.—Within the past three weeks over five hundred hogs have died of cholera in Western township. The disease is slowly spreading and is taking both old and young hogs. The loss from this cause to farmers of Henry county this fall already amounts to $12,000. The disease exists in Phenix, Edford, Wethersfield, Andover, western Evansville, Kaine and other townships in the county. This loss coming on the heels of the drought is very severe on farmers.

Over Twenty Cases of the Yellow Fever in Tampa.

QUARANTINES AGAINST THE CITY

Precautions Against the Further Spread of the Disease—Fumigation of the Malls—Flight of the People.

WASHINGTON, October 8.—Surgeon-General Hamilton this morning received the following telegram:

TAMPA, Fla., October 7.—Four deaths from yellow fever. About twenty cases. A few of these have passed the fever stage of twenty-four hours. Many people have fled. It may be necessary to establish a camp of refuge in the country. Malls can be fumigated.

President Roosevelt's Health Association.

In response to this Dr. Hamilton ordered tents to be sent to Tampa. The surgeon-general has sent a dispatch to Colonel Haines, superintendent of the Plant line of steamers, and the Savannah and Florida railroad stating that in his judgment sleeping cars should not be allowed to go beyond Palatka until the Tampa epidemic is over and the panic shall have ceased.

Yellow fever is still spreading at Tampa. Over twenty cases have been reported and four deaths altogether. A feeling of confidence exists throughout the state. The Jacksonville board of health has issued the following bulletin:

In consideration of the quarantine adopted by our county board of health, in addition to that established by the Florida Protective association, and because of the excellent sanitary condition of Jacksonville, we do not apprehend an introduction of yellow fever from Tampa, over 200 miles distant.

NEAL MITCHELL, M. D., President Duval county Board of Health.

WASHINGTON, October 8.—The postoffice department has been notified that the prevalence of yellow fever at Tampa, Fla. all mails for Key West and Cuban points will be sent down the coast line to Tampa, on the Florida coast, and will be transferred to mail steamers, which will make this point their northern terminus, instead of Tampa. All mails for Key West and Cuban points will be sent down the coast line to Tampa, on the Florida coast, and will be transferred to mail steamers, which will make this point their northern terminus, instead of Tampa.

Surveyor Beattie has preferred charges against Captain Vallet, of steamship Alesia, which arrived here from Naples two weeks ago with a cargo of passengers. The captain did not provide proper hospitals for his passengers; that he failed to provide tables and seats for steerage passengers and that in his manifest of passengers he failed to give the cause of the deaths of the passengers who died on passage. Captain Vallet was arraigned before Commissioner Shields and on his manifest of passengers he failed to give the cause of the deaths of the passengers who died on passage.

Cable dispatch from Merida, Mexico, says that part has been closed against the United States on account of an epidemic of cholera in that city.

No additional deaths were reported to the quarantine commissioners to-day.

BLOWN INTO THE AIR.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 8.—[Special.]—A terrible accident occurred this morning at the site of the Hyde's ferry bridge, over the Cumberland, a few miles below the city. The boiler of the little steamer Paducah, (the engine of which has been used to pump water out of the coffer dam), exploded, literally blowing the boat into kindling wood, and instantly killing Thomas J. Tripp, a young man who was acting engineer of the boat, and breaking the leg of William Morgan, carpenter of the bridge works. At the time of the accident there were a number of men at work in the coffer dam just adjoining the boat. Mr. Broderick, the contractor, says he looked up when he heard a deafening explosion, and the air obscured with fragments of the boiler of the little steamer, which was at the time in use pumping water out of the coffer dam, had exploded, and only a few minutes remained to show where the boat had been. William Morgan, the carpenter of the works, was standing with Hugh Henderson on the bank, and the boiler of the little steamer Paducah, (the engine of which has been used to pump water out of the coffer dam), exploded, literally blowing the boat into kindling wood, and instantly killing Thomas J. Tripp, a young man who was acting engineer of the boat, and breaking the leg of William Morgan, carpenter of the bridge works.

In the meantime search was made for Thos. J. Tripp, the engineer of the boat. His body was found near the gunwale of the half-sunken wreck. He was quite dead, in a bad hole in his side, and his body and face bruised and scalded. His remains were carried to the bank and covered with a quilt. Morgan was taken across the river to his home. Deputy Coroner Hood was dispatched to the scene, and a jury of inquest was organized. A number of witnesses were examined and gave their account of the awful explosion. Frank Walker, who has been the main engineer testified that the boiler had been inspected by the steamboat inspectors, Martin Harvey, a boy, said that he was in the boiler room about ten minutes before the explosion, and that Tripp had said that there were 140 pounds of steam on, 20 pounds more than was allowed. The jury brought in a verdict "that Tripp came to his death by the boiler explosion on the steamer Paducah, of which he was engineer, and in the opinion that said explosion was caused by carrying more steam than was allowed by the steamboat inspectors' license."

A large piece of the boiler, according to the statement of Mr. Walker, an old one, was found about 150 yards up the river bank, and fragments were blown into the field high above. Some of the workmen say that bits of the boat were blown into houses for a distance of half a mile.

Never so much fun offered for 50 cents as at Exposition grounds Monday afternoon. Go out and take your folks.

THE FEVER SPREADING.

Over Twenty Cases of the Yellow Fever in Tampa.

QUARANTINES AGAINST THE CITY

Precautions Against the Further Spread of the Disease—Fumigation of the Malls—Flight of the People.

TAMPA, Fla., October 7.—Four deaths from yellow fever. About twenty cases. A few of these have passed the fever stage of twenty-four hours. Many people have fled. It may be necessary to establish a camp of refuge in the country. Malls can be fumigated.

President Roosevelt's Health Association.

In response to this Dr. Hamilton ordered tents to be sent to Tampa. The surgeon-general has sent a dispatch to Colonel Haines, superintendent of the Plant line of steamers, and the Savannah and Florida railroad stating that in his judgment sleeping cars should not be allowed to go beyond Palatka until the Tampa epidemic is over and the panic shall have ceased.

Yellow fever is still spreading at Tampa. Over twenty cases have been reported and four deaths altogether. A feeling of confidence exists throughout the state. The Jacksonville board of health has issued the following bulletin:

In consideration of the quarantine adopted by our county board of health, in addition to that established by the Florida Protective association, and because of the excellent sanitary condition of Jacksonville, we do not apprehend an introduction of yellow fever from Tampa, over 200 miles distant.

NEAL MITCHELL, M. D., President Duval county Board of Health.

WASHINGTON, October 8.—The postoffice department has been notified that the prevalence of yellow fever at Tampa, Fla. all mails for Key West and Cuban points will be sent down the coast line to Tampa, on the Florida coast, and will be transferred to mail steamers, which will make this point their northern terminus, instead of Tampa. All mails for Key West and Cuban points will be sent down the coast line to Tampa, on the Florida coast, and will be transferred to mail steamers, which will make this point their northern terminus, instead of Tampa.

Surveyor Beattie has preferred charges against Captain Vallet, of steamship Alesia, which arrived here from Naples two weeks ago with a cargo of passengers. The captain did not provide proper hospitals for his passengers; that he failed to provide tables and seats for steerage passengers and that in his manifest of passengers he failed to give the cause of the deaths of the passengers who died on passage. Captain Vallet was arraigned before Commissioner Shields and on his manifest of passengers he failed to give the cause of the deaths of the passengers who died on passage.

Cable dispatch from Merida, Mexico, says that part has been closed against the United States on account of an epidemic of cholera in that city.

No additional deaths were reported to the quarantine commissioners to-day.

BLOWN INTO THE AIR.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 8.—[Special.]—A terrible accident occurred this morning at the site of the Hyde's ferry bridge, over the Cumberland, a few miles below the city. The boiler of the little steamer Paducah, (the engine of which has been used to pump water out of the coffer dam), exploded, literally blowing the boat into kindling wood, and instantly killing Thomas J. Tripp, a young man who was acting engineer of the boat, and breaking the leg of William Morgan, carpenter of the bridge works. At the time of the accident there were a number of men at work in the coffer dam just adjoining the boat. Mr. Broderick, the contractor, says he looked up when he heard a deafening explosion, and the air obscured with fragments of the boiler of the little steamer, which was at the time in use pumping water out of the coffer dam, had exploded, and only a few minutes remained to show where the boat had been. William Morgan, the carpenter of the works, was standing with Hugh Henderson on the bank, and the boiler of the little steamer Paducah, (the engine of which has been used to pump water out of the coffer dam), exploded, literally blowing the boat into kindling wood, and instantly killing Thomas J. Tripp, a young man who was acting engineer of the boat, and breaking the leg of William Morgan, carpenter of the bridge works.

In the meantime search was made for Thos. J. Tripp, the engineer of the boat. His body was found near the gunwale of the half-sunken wreck. He was quite dead, in a bad hole in his side, and his body and face bruised and scalded. His remains were carried to the bank and covered with a quilt. Morgan was taken across the river to his home. Deputy Coroner Hood was dispatched to the scene, and a jury of inquest was organized. A number of witnesses were examined and gave their account of the awful explosion. Frank Walker, who has been the main engineer testified that the boiler had been inspected by the steamboat inspectors, Martin Harvey, a boy, said that he was in the boiler room about ten minutes before the explosion, and that Tripp had said that there were 140 pounds of steam on, 20 pounds more than was allowed. The jury brought in a verdict "that Tripp came to his death by the boiler explosion on the steamer Paducah, of which he was engineer, and in the opinion that said explosion was caused by carrying more steam than was allowed by the steamboat inspectors' license."

Nothing like it has ever been seen in this country before, and it will be the regret of your life if you miss it. Arrange for your wife and children to go. They will never have such another opportunity. From six o'clock until eight o'clock study the electric light and watch the fireworks until 9:30, and you will still have an hour left to look over the exposition. The grounds and building will be brilliantly illuminated by electric light, and there will be accommodations for twenty thousand people. Remember, Wednesday night of this week.

Mayor Cooper's Proclamation.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, ATLANTA, GA., October 8, 1887.—In view of the importance to the citizens of Atlanta, this opening day of our grand exposition should witness such a display of people as will cause the wires to flash the good news to the four corners of the union that thirty thousand men, woman and children had entered the gates and attended the exercises, therefore, cordially relying on the patriotism of the citizens of Atlanta, who has never been found wanting, I request that all persons of every class or business, lay aside their cares and occupations at 12 o'clock m., on Monday, the 10th day of October, and confer with their presence that day, to the success of our magnificent enterprise.

JOHN T. COOPER, Mayor.

Guarding Against Fire.

The danger of fire in the city has been reduced to the minimum. The arrangements for fighting fire are in every way most excellent. Captain Joyner has placed on duty at the grounds eight of his best men. These men will be on duty day and night, and will be subjected to exactly the same discipline that obtain in the Atlanta department. Mr. H. P. Haney has charge of the exposition forces of firemen. One of the large reserve engines has been placed near the creek, only some two hundred feet from the main building. This engine has been fired up and will be kept hot day and night, and will be ready. There is attached to it, ready for use at a moment's notice, 1,000 feet of hose, pulled out and coupled, as the engine is kept constantly under a head of steam, and the hose, by the end of the hose attached to the suction apparatus is in the creek, which contains an inexhaustible supply of water. In addition to the steam engine and hose, there is a jumper with 800 feet of new hose, furnished by the Fabric Fire Hose company, of New York, which forms a part of this company's exhibit. There are also ten fire extinguishers, lent by the Fire Extinguishing company, of Chicago. These are distributed over the buildings. The center of the main building. The taking away from the city of these eight trained firemen does not, in the slightest degree, impair the efficiency of the city fire, Captain Joyner says. In view of the importance of the department to keep down fire, the insurance companies have materially lowered their rates on the exhibits.

A Word to the Ladies.

The ladies are expected to do their part in making the opening day of the exposition a grand success. The board has resolved that carriages shall be admitted with a charge of fifty cents for each carriage, twenty-five cents for each buggy, and with no charge for the driver of a carriage or buggy. There are thousands of carriages filled with Atlanta's devoted and beautiful women on the grounds Monday. Nothing can make the scene more brilliant, and no day in Atlanta has ever been so busy as at work for the exposition to higher efforts. Let the ladies turn out in force and there is no doubt of the success of the exposition. Let those who have no carriages, or who prefer to go by the railroad, or by the street cars. Tickets can be had at the National Hotel ticket office, or on Peachtree street for the street cars. Every lady in Atlanta is interested in the exposition, and Atlanta depends on nothing so much as on the success of the opening day of her exposition.

Work at the Grounds Yesterday.

It looked like an exposition yesterday. The seventy-five acres enclosed was a perfect hive. More than two thousand men were at work each hour of the day, and the grounds were ready for Monday, and an enormous amount of work was done.

There was a continual stream of cattle, horses and carriages coming in from the railroad all day. Over five hundred chickens were put up in the poultry building, and the express office was filled last night with new arrivals. The live stock and poultry department is already an overwhelming success.

In the main building it was still a fight against confusion, but every exhibit was almost ready. A force of fifty men under Mr. R. O. Douglas was put to work at six o'clock yesterday afternoon cleaning up the aisles and windows, so everything would be "spick span" clean Monday morning.

In agricultural and machinery hall the work was a little more backward, but every man was bucking down and order rapidly shaped from chaos.

Amusement was behind with her exhibit, five cars having been lost somewhere in town, but Mr. T. H. and his colleagues were cool and determined and say they will be with the boys as ten o'clock on Monday. Mr. Gates and Mr. Spencer from Poughkeepsie, Vermont, representing the Moseley and Standard company, arrived yesterday, and are getting the Poughkeepsie dairy to perfect order. They will make two hundred and fifty pounds of butter a day, beginning Monday morning, and working from the milking of the cow to packing the butter for market.

A wonderful transformation was effected yesterday in the grounds around the buildings.

under Mr. Johnson's direction. Whole groves of cedars were planted out, and curious shaped beds of flowers sprang up as if by magic. The plants will be put into position early Monday morning, and Piedmont park will be as fresh as a daisy. The fire department, armed with spray nozzles will sprinkle the entire grounds two days, freshen up the flowers, and lay the dust completely, so that everything will be pleasant on Monday.

Extra Train Service During Exposition.

The Western and Atlantic railroad and Rome railroad will place four trains between Rome and Atlanta to accommodate all who expect to visit the fair. Passengers will have the pleasure of witnessing the illumination of Kennesaw mountain. The following is the schedule:

W. A. Verney, Columbus, Ga., enters Black Cloud, Jr., by Black Cloud, out of thoroughbred mare.

A Final Word About Closing.

Our merchants have had a splendid week. They have all felt the exposition, and their trade has been unprecedented. There is a chance for the biggest two weeks ahead. The city of Atlanta has never known, all on account of the exposition.

No one thing only will endanger the success of the exposition, that is a small crowd on opening day. Can the merchants afford to endanger it by refusing to close up and join the whole people in going out to make the exposition a success? No, they will not. They will print additional names of those who will close, which covers every business in the city except one or two, at the outside. Shall we not see every store closed Monday, and the whole people out at the exposition?

Below are given some additional names received yesterday:

STORES AND HOUSE FURNISHING.

The following store and house furnishing stores will close Monday noon:

H. S. Wood, Hummel & Bellinger, H. Frank, W. C. Warlick, Wingo & McIl, W. J. Wood, Thos. Kirke & Co.

MORE WHOLESALE CLOSING.

We, the undersigned wholesale houses, agree to close our houses on Monday at twelve o'clock, in order to give our employees an opportunity to attend the opening exercises of the exposition.

A. G. Howard & Co., Howard Mfg. Co., Lamm, Rankin & Lamm, John B. Daniel, Magnus & Halliday, J. C. Gaudin & Co.

MORE RETAIL CLOSING.

The following retail grocery merchants agree to close their places of business on Monday from 12 to 6 p. m. to attend the exposition:

S. L. Lowe, S. G. Dittler, S. S. Mitchell, W. H. West, T. J. Shepard & Co., Robt. Dolme.

SOME OTHERS.

Mr. W. S. Simmons will close his retail grocery. Messrs. Hart, of the city, will close a tobacco merchants, will close at noon on Monday. S. C. Spence's telephone that they will close their place of business on Monday.

The furniture men will, as a rule, close their places of business.

Many others who have not been named in these columns, will doubtless follow the example set there, and aid in making Atlanta day a grand success.

The Thriving Thousands.

What an influx of visitors there was into Atlanta yesterday! The night. How many came? Not less than 5,000, is the estimate of the railroad official made to a CONSTITUTION man last night. The one cent rate went into effect yesterday. The Central trains were filled. The trains from the States will be filled. Birmingham, Augusta and Charlotte came weighted down with human freight. Every seat in every passenger coach was occupied. The biggest crowd came on the Richmond and Danville, but every train entering the city brought its quota. Many of the roads will increase the size of their trains today and tomorrow. On Monday the roads will be running. The crowd will continue to pour in from all sides until the city will contain such a multitude of human beings as it has never before sheltered. The crowd will continue during the biggest days of the cotton exposition.

To the Singers of Atlanta and Neighboring Cities.

A cordial invitation is extended to the singers of Atlanta and neighboring towns, especially members of choirs, to take part as a chorus in the musical display of the exposition. It is intended to make this the grand musical feature of the first day's programme. Mr. Sam Bradley, of this city, will be musical director. An experienced chorus of over one hundred trained voices will participate. All who wish to offer their services to make this occasion a brilliant success are requested to send their names to Mr. Bradley at once, in order that the chorus may be organized and rehearsals be held without further delay. Members of the chorus will be entitled to free admission, and transportation on the opening day to the exposition, and will be furnished with appropriate badges.

Military Orders.

The following orders were issued yesterday:

THE GOVERNOR'S STAFF.

All officers of the governor's staff now in the city will appear in uniform at the Kimball home monument, at 12:30 p. m., on Monday, the 10th of October, for duty on the governor's staff.

ORDER OF THE GOVERNOR.

Jos. McIntosh KELL, Adj. Gen'l.

Atlanta, Ga., October 8, 1887.

GENERAL YOUNG'S STAFF.

All officers of General Young's staff now in the city will appear in uniform and mounted, at the Kimball home, at 12:30 p. m., on Monday, the 10th of October, for duty on the staff.

Wm. H. K. HOLMES, Asst. Adj. Gen'l.

Atlanta, October 8, 1887.

THE YOUNG MEN'S PARADE.

What is being done—Organization Being Pushed.

The preparations for the big parade, which will certainly be one of the leading features of the exposition, are doing particularly well.

It will be a demonstration of the young men and boys of the city, and every young man in that party. It will be the young men of Georgia honoring the president of the United States, and it will be a grand affair going without saying.

Ten thousand torches have been received, and are being stored at the various distribution points. These torches are of the most improved pattern, and are so made that it is absolutely impossible to split the oil from them. They give a perfect light, and will burn all night.

Every day brings applications for captain's commissions from all parts of the state as well as from the city. The towns and cities outside Atlanta are doing particularly well.

Chief Marshal John B. Goodwin has taken hold with a will, and this week will be devoted to the organization of additional Atlanta companies. It is not too late to organize. The only purpose of the formation of companies of twenty-five, is to make the procession an organized, orderly one, and no fancy drilling or anything of the sort is required, and every young man in Atlanta should bear a torch that night.

Those who do so will have the only good opportunity of seeing and hearing the president of the United States when he will be in the city until midnight, be the guest of the young men of Atlanta, Georgia. The young men should feel honored at this trust, and should do all in their power to make it a decided success.

Opening of the Club House.

The beautiful club house of the Driving club was formally thrown open to the members yesterday. It is a perfect little gem. The beautiful fountain building, with its more beautiful, if possible, surroundings, is all that could possibly be desired. Mr. Don Bain and Major J. A. Fitten have had charge of the portion of the work, and the beautiful building certainly reflects great credit upon them. A large number of members of the Driving club, and ladies, visited the club house during the evening, and everybody was delighted with it.

Exposition Chorus Rehearsal.

There will be a special rehearsal of the chorus for opening day, at St. Philip's church, the evening of 8 o'clock. The band of 150. Second Artillery will be present. It is desired that the members of the chorus be prompt in attendance. By order of Samuel Bradley, director.

Exposition Notes.

Everything will boom from the start.

The south Florida exhibit is a most interesting one.

Putnam county will make a strong bid for the forty-two acres.

At ten o'clock tomorrow the great gates will swing open with a mighty swing.

A log cabin quilt, made by Mrs. Mary F. Beasley, of this city, attracts a good deal of attention.

F. J. Colbridge & Bro. will close their store and factory Monday at 12 o'clock. They have a very fine exhibit.

The Poultry and Pigeon Shows.

The poultry and pigeon shows will contain many beautiful birds and will certainly be visited by everybody.

The Tallapoosa exhibit, like that of Birmingham and Aniston, is sure to be one of the great attractions of the exposition.

The Hon. Samuel J. Randall and two hundred and fifty-three excursionists left Washington yesterday for the exposition.

W. A. Verney, Columbus, Ga., enters Black Cloud, Jr., by Black Cloud, out of thoroughbred mare.

What a Sight it Will Be!

What a sight it will be! 25,000 Atlantians on Monday afternoon to see the exposition, in the old-fashioned Atlanta way!

Among the racers at the grounds are a number of grand racers, which came here from the famous Sherman race course.

The display of the Atlanta Talc and Soapstone company, in charge of Prof. Caldon, promises to be a most interesting one.

Mr. H. W. Grady, Jr., has a superb display of fancy pigeons at the exposition, including pouter, fan, tumbler, Antwerp, nuns and turks, should decorate.

The streets are filled at night with young men in companies of twenty-five drilling for the torchlight procession.

They come from every section of the city.

The cattle building is so full that Mr. Wylie has asked many local breeders to hold their stock back, and take temporary accommodations with them.

The special reception committee of Confederate veterans to receive Union veterans consists of R. M. Harrison, telegraphist, J. Brown, C. W. Seidell, W. T. Wilson and J. B. Davis.

The racing horses have overrun the stables, and orders were given yesterday for forty-eight new stalls, which were begun immediately and will be ready for occupancy Monday evening.

The cattle building is already overrun. It has been enlarged twice since begun, and the entries now exceed the capacity of the building. Do not fail to see this show Monday afternoon.

Mr. W. A. Rowe, champion bicyclist of the world—Windle, Crick, Robertson, Crocker and other famous names will reach Atlanta on the Air-Line train today. The local wheelmen will turn out to meet them.

Money strings will be the biggest day.

Money strings will be the biggest day. It has never been in Atlanta for sports. Speaking, balloon ascension, music, bicycle races, horse races, military and other amusements will be held in the city.

Captain W. E. Arnold, of Orlando, Fla., traveling passenger agent of the South Florida railroad, will be in the city. Colonel Elliot, of the Florida exhibit, has one of the most interesting displays on the grounds. Florida is there displayed in all her glory.

Messrs. Detwiler & Street received yesterday.

A new stock of bunting, flags of all sizes and Japanese lanterns. This is the third time the stock of this kind of goods has been received. These desirable decoration material should call early. Everybody in the city, especially along the line of the Air-Line, should see it.

Hoyt & Thorn, 90 Whitehall street, are the only merchants in the city who have the regular stock of bunting, flags of all sizes and Japanese lanterns.

Every business house, display and residence should have one, however small, and decorate in honor of the president of the United States. The stock is white and blue, also in stock, as well as a full line of flags.

A superb exhibit of pigeons will be that of Dr. Mathewson, of New York. He has 150. The Giant Pouters down to pigeons, hardly larger than a catbird, but retaining every characteristic of the Giant Pouter. This is just as if some day a fancier would breed the English mastiff down to a terrier, but keep the mastiff characteristics perfect. Dr. Cook will have forty birds on exhibition.

The balloon ascension Monday afternoon.

The balloon ascension Monday afternoon will be a great feature. An athlete will ascend, and will be seen from the city. He will be in the basket of the balloon, and will execute the most marvelous feats, five thousand feet above the earth. The crowd will be large, and the balloon will be seen from the city.

Do not fail to see the great ascension.

On Monday, October 17, at 1 p. m., sixty of the rock-ribbed, iron-clad, unyielding democrats of Thomas county will reach this city to meet President Cleveland.

They will come in a special train. The train will be composed of the following: Messrs. Detwiler & Street, of this city, have been selected for them on Peachtree street. They will be in the city, and will be seen from the city.

Visitors to the exposition who travel by private conveyance will find ample arrangements made in front of the club house.

Money strings will be the biggest day. It has never been in Atlanta for sports. Speaking, balloon ascension, music, bicycle races, horse races, military and other amusements will be held in the city.

At the earnest solicitation of Mr. W. C. Huff, southern manager, the electric current from the two large Schuler dynamos will be landed on Monday evening at 6 o'clock by Miss Jim Wylie, daughter of Mr. J. K. Wylie, who will introduce in our midst the car of the future.

Lighting will include both an incandescent and a gas lighting system. The car will be in the city, and will be seen from the city.

The exposition will look beautiful by electric light.

HE WENT TO JAIL.

Rather Than Have a Policeman to Guard Him Longer.

CONTRACTOR CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

J. E. Carnes Arrested Because Gentleman Deny Signing Notes Which He Sold—Other Police News.

J. E. Carnes, a contractor well known in Atlanta, where he has an office, but whose home is in Jonesboro, was sent to the Fulton county jail yesterday, and will remain a prisoner until parties complaining against him are satisfied, or the majesty of the law has been fully vindicated.

Two warrants for forgery were the papers upon which the prisoner was committed.

Carnes has been a prominent contractor and builder in Atlanta for twelve or fifteen years past, and at one time was a member of the firm of Carnes & Turner. The firm did a large business, and made money. Carnes proves as successful in investing his money as he was in contracting, and a few years ago was thought to be well off. His partner died, however, and then Carnes went on with the business and was as successful as before. So every one thought.

But appearances are often deceptive.

Several months ago Carnes went to a well-known capitalist in Atlanta, and negotiated a loan of something like $2,400. The capitalist subsequently received the paper which bore the signature of Carnes, and was supposed to be the signature of a man named Morrow, the father-in-law of Carnes. The paper was supposed to be perfectly good, and the gentleman holding it moved along thoroughly satisfied. Before the paper became due, however, the capitalist died, and the notes, of course, went to his heirs. Not long since, the money was due, but as the parties signing were all perfect good and solvent, a collection was not pushed.

Besides the paper negotiated with the capitalist, Carnes some months ago signed a note for $1,000, which he transferred to a Petersburg merchant.

The note was indorsed by another Morrow and was transferred by the Petersburg merchant to W. A. Russell, the Peachtree to Carnes. The note fell due some days ago, and Carnes did not come forward and pay. Mr. Russell sent to the indorser for the money. That gentleman, however, repudiated the signature as soon as it was shown him, and a warrant charging Carnes with forgery was sworn out by Mr. Russell. This was about the first of the present month, and Carnes was arrested by Detective Buchanan. Carnes, however, succeeded in adjusting the debt and was released. The arrest and the charge of forging soon became known, but not generally. However, the fact of holding the large notes, and the fact of Carnes being arrested, were heard of it and at once began an investigation. The gentlemen whose names were signed to the notes repudiated the signatures, and then the capitalist began looking for Carnes. This was during the early part of the week, but as he made no attempt to secrete himself, he was easily found. Again, he asserted most positively that the notes were genuine, and was given time to adjust the matter. On Friday, however, the parties holding the notes became impatient and swearing out a warrant for Carnes, caused his arrest. The prisoner continued to assert that he was innocent, and was extremely anxious to avoid any publicity. The complainant was disposed to accommodate Carnes and instructed the official to permit him to remain in the city, and that night the policeman accompanied the contractor to Jonesboro, where he remained that night. Yesterday morning, however, the contractor brought his charge back to the city, and later in the day, in obedience to instructions, conducted him to the city prison. The complainant finally declined to give Carnes any more time to settle the matter. Carnes then refused to have an officer to guard him, and of his own accord went to jail, preferring that to being under strict guard.

Carnes's arrest, upon warrants charging him with forgery, proved quite a surprise to his friends, many of whom called to see him. To his friends Carnes is a man of good character, and said that he would be able to establish the truth of his assertion at the right time. Carnes, it is understood, says that the money for which the large notes were given, was given to him by his partner, who is dead, and that the entire transaction was between two men, both of whom are now dead. He claims that if either or both men were alive the trouble with him would never have arisen. Carnes's friends are confident that he will come out all right. Many of them assert that the gentlemen whose names are attached to the notes gave Carnes a large sum of money, and that he was to use it to settle the matter. Carnes then refused to have an officer to guard him, and of his own accord went to jail, preferring that to being under strict guard.
